Since Eastern Nazarene College was established in 1918, it has been distinguished by its dedication to Christian principles. The student body of Eastern Nazarene College, guided by the administration and faculty, has endeavored to represent these standards in all of its activities.

From the freshman to the graduate student, we as students feel that God's hand has been in every activity, in every facet of our lives during our stay in college.

Let this, the thirty-sixth volume of the Nautilus, be a living testimony that in the future, as in the past, . . .

"But now, O Lord, thou art our father; we are the clay, and thou our potter; and we all are the work of thy hand."

DEDICATION

TO ONE WHO HAS SUBMITTED HIS LIFE TO GOD'S MOLDING HAND . . .

To one whose scholarly discipline inspires young minds to grasp philosophical truths, to read philosophical writings, to pursue philosophical evaluations . . .

To one whose complete consecration and loyalty to genuine Christianity has included a ministry of evangelism geared to help young people solve their spiritual and social problems . . .

To one whose busy life has included not only preaching and teaching, but responsibilities as class sponsor, Student Council advisor, and student counselor . . .

To one who has introduced us to the basic systems of philosophy, who has inspired and challenged each of us in his clearly outlined, well-prepared lectures, who has set establishing sound Christian beliefs as his objective in both preaching and teaching . . .

TO A CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN, WE, THE STAFF, DEDICATE THE 1958 NAUTILUS, TO YOU:

Our college of liberal arts gives us an introduction to general knowledge, an background for specialized study, and an approach to learning which attempts to influence the way we think. Here we learn to experiment and to analyze as well as to observe intelligently. We not only become acquainted with new facts but we learn to interpret and evaluate these facts.

The direction which higher education gives to us as Christian scholars helps us to clarify our principles and to increase our sensitivity to basic values. Viewing facts and evidence in the light of history and of current dynamic attitudes, we acquire skill in evaluation. Not only acquiring new knowledge, but also thinking through new ideas and relating this knowledge to our Christian faith makes the discipline of study meaningful and worthwhile to us.

As we discipline our minds through study, research, and investigation, God's hand molds us into informed disciples and capable workmen.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

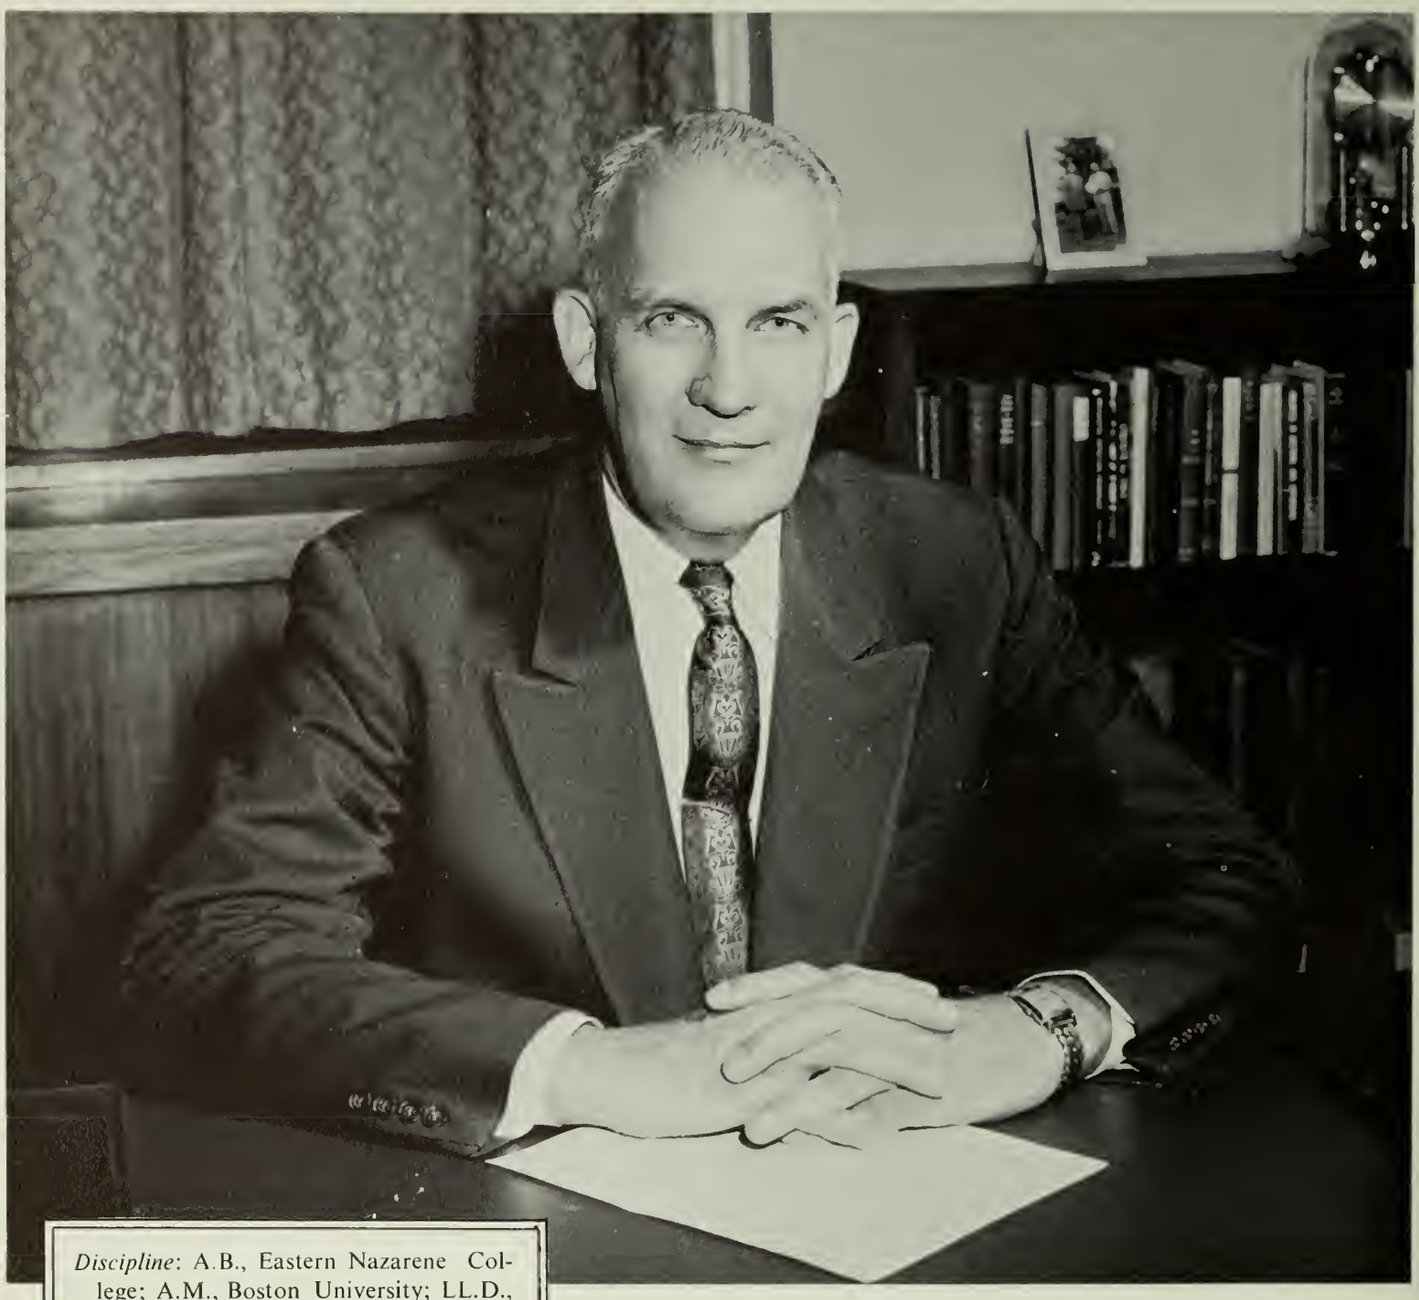

The Board of Trustees of the College is composed of ministerial and lay members elected annually from each district on the Education Zone. This group meets each September at the College to hear the President's Report and to transact business for the College. Four members are elected from each of the following districts: Akron, Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia, and New England. The Albany District sends three members. Two members are elected from each of the following districts: Canada Central, New York, and the Maritimes. Two representatives of the Alumni Association are also elected.

The success of the promotion work of E.N.C. is due in large part to the advice and assistance of the Development Council. Forty outstanding business and professional men of our Educational Zone together with the Board of Trustees compose the Development Council and meet each September to discuss and plan for the future of the College.

For the past two years, the financing and erection of the new Science Building has been the chief objective of these meetings. The help and advice of these men have been instrumental in making the raising of funds for this year so effective.

This year, the Rev. E. E. Grosse serves as Chairman of the Board of Trustees and the Development Council. The Rev. Renard Smith serves as Secretary.

Development Council members, excluding Trustee members, are as follows: Victor Binder, Jr., Buffalo, N. Y.; E. R. Blaisdell, W. Somerville, Mass.; G. Raymond Blann, Baltimore, Md.; John S. Carlson, Jamaica, N. Y.; Thorton S. Carman, Cleveland, Ohio; Roy B. Dick, Washington, D. C.; W. H. Fawcett, Toronto, Ont.; Norris W. Ford, W. Hartford, Conn.; Frank W. Gery, Broomall, Pa.; Curtis B. THE PRESIDENT

The hands of God are fearful hands. At least the writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews tells us "it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." And one of the most powerful sermons ever preached was Jonathan Edwards' "Sinners in the hands of an angry God."

The hands of God are loving hands. Jesus, teaching His disciples, said, "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow Me. And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any pluck them out of my hand."

The hands of God are creative hands. They threw the worlds out into space. They raised up the mountains, hung out the sun, moon, and stars, and fashioned the rainbow. They formed man from the dust of the ground.

Through an act of faith, we can entrust our lives to these same hands. And if we will yield ourselves completely—even as clay in the hands of the potter—we will find that the hands of God shall mold us. Nor shall anyone be able to pluck us out of His hands.

DEAN EMERITUS

Dean Emeritus and head of the Department of Letters, Bertha Munro has been an instrument in helping to mold lives of students by her scholarly guidance, her radiant testimony, and her objective view of literature.

She introduces students to the greatest of the world's thinking and writing and teaches them to develop individual literary criticism, judgment of literary values, and reverence for literary art.

Her prayers before class, her devotional writings, and her consistent testimony of dedicated living "not somehow, but triumphantly" are an inspiring correlation of literature, life, and faith.

Touring the art museum in Boston or singing "My life, my friend, my soul, I leave entirely to thy care," with the A Cappella choir are obvious pleasures of students in the music and fine arts department.

But the glamour of concerts is the product of hours of practice in sight reading intervals and of training in supported breathing. Delightful performances of Chopin's preludes and Gershwin's "Rhapsody In Blue" can't reveal the hours of playing arpeggios and two part inventions by Bach necessary to develop creditable technique.

We learn the science of music by leading our classmates in our course in choir directing and by avoiding parallel fifths in harmony.

In our study of fine arts we learn that the beauty of an artist's creation is enhanced by understanding of composition and design, by recognizing distortion, abstraction, and realism. We learn to look for religious symbolism not only in Michelangelo's paintings in the Sistine Chapel, but in the architectural structure of the chapel at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Whether we are enjoying listening to a composition by Beethoven or Stravinsky, or seeking the artist's meaning in a beautiful painting, we are gaining professional training and enriching our spiritual experience.

LETTERS

"Literature makes you think about life, stirs the emotions, and kindles the imagination," is the classic comment of the value of literature and letters. We remember this while struggling with Chaucer's middle English, "a clerk there was of Oxenford," or reading Shakespeare's King Lear. We evaluate great works in the light of the critics' answer to the question, "What is Literature?" as we read Robert Burns' "O wad some pow'r the giftie gie us tae see oorsels as ithers see us" and listen to recordings of Murder in the Cathedral.

In our language classes, we learn the difference between the familiar and the polite forms of address and enjoy reading the novel, Marianela.

We scan the Selections du Readers' Digest to better acquaint ourselves with practical French. We sing hymns in German as we learn to express ourselves in another language.

In composition courses we learn that "easy writing makes difficult reading" and we try to make what we write easy to read by hours of rewriting and revision.

We develop poise, confidence, and style in all our communication through the hours we spend preparing and rehearsing speech assignments.

Through all of our studies in letters we learn to evaluate our own principles and Christian standards in the light of what has been thought and said.

Freedom versus determinism and the objectivity of values are among the problems with which we wrestle in developing our understanding of the basic issues of philosophy. Reading Plato and Aristotle, Augustine and Aquinas, Descartes and Kierkegaard broadens our concepts of both religious thought and intellectual development.

Through direct acquaintance with the Word of God and a study of doctrine of the Christian church, we gain an understanding of our faith.

We study the doctrine of evangelical perfection and the life and thought of John Wesley; we learn the reformation doctrines of Luther, Zwingli, and Calvin; we discuss significant topics in the area of religion and theology in a seminar in religion.

Our faith becomes more stable because it is confirmed by intelligent thought and because we learn from our study of divine revelation, church history, and ethical principles that we have a genuine obligation to society.

Undergraduates in science and mathematics memorize chemical symbols and names of the bones in the human skeleton. We perform tedious experiments in physics with infinitesimal weights, and solve problems with mathematical formulas.

Carefully performing experiments, laboring over problems until we achieve satisfactory results, describing physiological tests, and applying biology in a greenhouse teach us to develop a proper scientific attitude.

Learning to use the scientific method may not be as exciting as launching intercontinental missiles or successfully administering a new drug, but it prepares us for careers in engineering, technology, medicine, industry, and teaching.

Scientists may understand the process of photosynthesis, but we still can't reproduce the phenomena. We may observe the movements of heavenly bodies throughout the universe, but we can only speculate about life on other planets.

In our courses not only do we spend hours solving problems in calculus and performing experiments until results are accurate, but we gain an appreciation of the complexities of God's creation and a respect for whatever order is known in the universe.

Correlating the geological timetable and the Genesis account of creation, discussing industry-wide collective bargaining, and varnishing number boards for teaching of arithmetic are typical activities of students in the Division of Social Science.

In a comparative government course, we learn the value of civil service in any type of effective government administration. We recall from a history lecture that "Henry VIII saw the light of reformation in the eyes of Anne Boleyn." We discover in a psychology course that the line between normality and abnormality may not be very precise.

Studying anthropology we learn that our accepting the scientific evidence of gigantopithecus and pithecanthropus robustus does not demand our accepting interpretations of that evidence. In order to interpret historical events accurately or to suggest workable solutions to labor-management problems we develop judgment of the significance of facts.

Using practical knowledge proves as essential in doing research in dusty archives as in practice teaching or solving problems in accounting. The background of a social science major helps discipline us to be of service in our communities, not only as professional people, lawyers, teachers, civil service employees, economists, or businessmen, but also as useful citizens, because we have learned to be aware of community problems and civic responsibilities.

The two-year program of the School of Practical Arts and Letters offers both training in technical skills and background in general knowledge for students interested in secretarial work.

Courses in Bible, Christian Beliefs, pastoral work, and electives in youth work and techniques of personal evangelism prepare us for specialized Christian service.

We develop skill in shorthand, increase our accuracy and speed in typing, and become acquainted with business law essential to a competent office worker.

We learn how to meet and handle people, how to use a dictaphone, mimeograph, and proper systems of indexing and filing in our course in office procedure.

We gain knowledge of community problems and political life, learn about the world in which we live, and review fundamentals of reading and writing, which we put to practice in daily assignments.

By special study for Christian service and practice of office skills, we develop ourselves to be of greater service both in our churches and in our communities.

SENIORS

Row One: H. Chambers, D. Peoples. Row Two: Dr. Rothwell, M. Grant, J. Strang, V. Burgess, W. Mullen.

From our first outing in the Blue Hills to our senior trip to the Elms, from freshman initiation to junior-senior banquets at the Toll House, from freshman tests to graduate record exams, from opening conventions to Baccalaureate, we members of the graduating class of 1958 have enjoyed the pleasures and privileges of four years at our alma mater.

We have conducted these class activities with the assistance of our advisors, Dr. and Mrs. Mel-Thomas Rothwell.

As we have completed our undergraduate study, we have become increasingly aware of the tasks ahead of us. Because we have studied, grown spiritually, and developed socially during college, we have assurance that "God's hand shall guide us" as we assume the role of Christian citizens in our communities.

CLASS MOTTO: "GOD'S HAND SHALL GUIDE US"

The graduating class of 1958 is confident that "God's hand shall guide . . ." as we leave the campus of our alma mater. We have sought His guidance and assistance as we've become established spiritually and as we've broadened our horizons intellectually.

Our confidence in the God we have known and served compels us to anticipate the blessings and assistance of his guidance as we enter our careers.

After the recreation and fun of an October outing on Houghton's Pond, we juniors began making plans for our Thanksgiving chapel. We chose "Benefits Forgot" as a theme for a program in which we reminded ourselves and our fellow students of the homes, friends, and college for which we should be grateful.

We also enjoyed the pleasures of beginning our studies in our major fields, and we began to realize more than ever before the significance of college experience in preparing us for our futures.

The traditional Junior-Senior day activities climaxed hours of marching rehearsals and preparation for the privilege of honoring the graduating seniors, whose place we must take next year.

We anticipate our final year with the hope that we can achieve, after four years of study, spiritual growth, and social activities, the dignity which will prepare us to enter the professional world.

We sophomores quickly recognized the position which a new freshman class gave us as we guided freshmen orientation through a "Greenie Weekend." We showed the freshmen how to work by raking up leaves on campus, how to have fun at an informal party in the gymnasium, and how to enjoy the spiritual advantages of a Christian college by attending the campus church and sharing a prayer meeting.

For diversion from the grind of study of Literature by Types, Introduction to Psychology, Christian Doctrine and other "universal requirements," we had an outing which included seeing the Red Sox defeat the Yankees at Fenway Park, eating out, and enjoying an inspirational campfire service.

We shared the responsibilities of making Thanksgiving on campus enjoyable by decorating the dining room, which we again decorated for Junior-Senior day luncheon.

Completion of half of our college career makes us eager to attend our first classes in the major courses which we have elected for next year.

The first year of college brought many surprises to us "greenie" freshmen. Entrance exams, classes in English composition, Survey of Fine Arts, History of Western Civilization, and other lower-division requirements introduced each of us to the academic emphasis of college. We learned the principles of writing essay exams, the consequences of failing to do assignments, and the relative futility of cramming, although we will all probably try it again.

At the Faculty-Freshmen reception, we first met the professors who would direct our scholastic activities and share our interests and problems during our stay in college.

The fun we had horseback riding and hiking in the Blue Hills at our first outing gave us promise of the fun college social activities offer.

We assumed our first important responsibilities when we entertained the high-school students who visited the college on a motorcade in October.

In January, we presented a program for the college N.Y.P.S. in which we displayed our talents by singing, playing instruments, and reading.

In our class prayer meetings we shared our problems of homesickness, of seemingly insurmountable financial difficulties, and of studies. We also shared our gratefulness for the privilege of attending a Christian college and living together with other young people.

Most of all our first year in college has made us eagerly anticipate the pleasures and possible achievements of the years ahead of us.

An important part of the emphasis on our Christian college campus is concentrated on strengthening and developing our spiritual life. The spiritual program, moves us to sharpen our spiritual values so that our dedication is made real in everyday living.

We learn that a genuine divine-human encounter which develops into a consistently nourished divine-human relationship, is basic. We learn to examine our purpose honestly and to decide for ourselves whether our dedication will be an effective witness to the truth and reality of Christ and the Holy Spirit in our lives.

Small prayer meetings after dinner and in the dormitories, private devotions, Christian service activities under the direction of student organizations, as well as college sponsored conventions and chapel and worship services, give us opportunities to make life-time decisions and to deepen our knowledge of Christ as we strengthen the dedication of our hearts.

PASTOR'S MESSAGE

Dear Friends:

It is a major part of the genius of this College that it addresses itself to the cultivation of the whole man. Its first task is, of course, the discipline of the mind; not alone the amassing of information, but the ability to think critically and constructively. This is that wisdom which transcends knowledge.

It is the business of the College, too, through the diversity of association which it opens to you, to enable you to live the good life, not only worthily and intelligently, but also graciously. And this, too, is important.

But the supremely important contribution of the College to your life lies in the realm of the human spirit; a spirit which God has fashioned for fellowship with Himself, and which can be truly at home only in the environment of the living God. It is our earnest hope for you that you shall find His perfect will for your life and choose it above all else.

May God's best be yours—this is my prayer.

J. Glenn Gould

Rev. J. Glenn Gould, D.D., Pastor

Rev. Floyd O. Flemming, Assistant Pastor

The college church provides a friendly atmosphere of worship for both students and members from the Wollaston community. Its ministry in regular Sunday services, Wednesday evening prayer meetings, and special evangelistic services is oriented to meet the needs of a combination college and community congregation.

Cooperative participation is exemplified in the college choir which, under the direction of Paul I. Willwerth, provides a ministry in music for the church.

The Sunday school program is designed to make attendance an enjoyable and regular activity of everyone who attends the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene.

Paul I. Willwerth directs the church choir in an inspirational song.

Rev. Charles Alstott, Dr. Samuel Hynd, and Rev. Armand Doll.

During the Third Annual Missionary Conference this year, the commission of Christ: "I send you forth," echoed as a challenge to every Christian as veterans from the mission fields shared their experiences with college students in classes, chapel services, special lectures, and panel discussions.

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Hynd from Swaziland, South Africa, the Rev. and Mrs. Armand Doll from Portuguese East Africa, the Rev. Charles Alstott from Haiti, and Miss Fairy Chism formerly from South Africa, discussed problems of the missionaries on the field. Sociological adjustments, the adaptation of Christianity to cultures different from our own, political obstacles to the development of mission stations, and the inadequate number of qualified workers, were among the problems which they brought to our attention. Accounts of successful conversions and prospering churches carried the note of victory of a God-ordained endeavor to fulfill "opportunities unlimited."

For the N.Y.P.S., this has been a year of challenge and victory. As "Programs With a Purpose" were presented, the whole society and those influenced by it were made to realize more and more the real meaning of service.

Hidden talents were revealed as societies, classes, and committees prepared excellent programs. Projects included a Conquest subscription drive in the fall and caroling after the Christmas party. Sunday night singspirations provided fun and fellowship after the evening services.

The spiritual emphasis was strongly felt in dormitory prayer cells as students met under the leadership of student pastors to share their burdens and victories. The Youth Revival, with the Rev. Robert Woods, was a time of inspiration and uplift for the entire student body. Many made definite decisions to serve Christ.

The theme and purpose of the Young Peoples' Society was most clearly portrayed in the service "That There Might Be Joy on our Campus," an interpretation in pantomime of salvation and sanctification at the foot of the cross.

Gould Lectures—Rev. Ted E. Martin, Pastor, Church of the Nazarene, Hammond, Indiana.

College chapel services have strengthened our insight into spiritual truths and practical Christian living. They have offered challenges to each of us to deepen our devotion to the Master of our lives.

EVANGELISTIC ASSOCIATION

The evangelistic association of Eastern Nazarene College fosters the spirit of evangelism which is vital to the unique ministry of the Church of the Nazarene and the special mission of a Christian college.

Each Christian has a personal responsibility to witness to the unsaved. Through the Evangelistic Association students are given the privilege of participating in activities which give them an opportunity to testify to the unsaved in the Wollaston and South Boston area.

Each Sunday afternoon choirs go to the Quincy City Hospital and several Nursing Homes to bring cheer to the ill and the aged. These choirs have proved inspirational to both the shut-ins and the singers.

Boston Nazarene Chapel is one of the Association's most important projects. Several students teach in the Sunday School, while others engage in visitation evangelism in the South Boston neighborhood.

The influence of the Evangelistic Association reaches another type of needy souls in its busy schedule of mission services. Each Sunday and Wednesday evening, groups of students go to the missions of Boston to preach, to sing, and to witness to those who need Christ desperately.

In all its activities the Evangelistic Association provides excellent opportunities for college students to strengthen their own personal experience by witnessing and by developing the kind of abilities which are necessary for success in the ministry and other types of Christian service. The real purpose of the Evangelistic Association is not to promote service training alone, but to reach souls who are desperate and discouraged and bring them into the Kingdom of God.

STUDENT FOREIGN MISSIONS FELLOWSHIP

The emphasis of the S.F.M.F. was uttered by Christ when he said: "I send you forth . . ." This great commission challenges E.N.C.-ers who participate in the activities of the fellowship and share the inspiration of the annual missionary conference.

An early fall chapel service set the theme for the work of the S.F.M.F. this year. Several students who had received the unchanging commission told of their call to go and tell about Christ to those who have never heard.

Regular Thursday evening meetings to encourage prayer and fellowship were conducted. Interesting features of these programs included tape recordings and short talks outlining the student's responsibility toward missions.

Another major activity of the Fellowship was to send Christmas greetings to missionaries all over the world. Prayer requests were enclosed to be returned to E.N.C. students. Replies came from every part of the globe and greetings from the missionaries accompanied many.

"Martyred Men," an epic film of modern missionary endeavor among the Auca Indians, other films, panel discussions and conferences brought the challenge of Christian missions more clearly to E.N.C. students.

Speakers for the Third Annual Missionary Conference included the Rev. and Mrs. Armand Doll, the Rev. Charles Alstott, Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Hynd, and Miss Fairy Chism who spoke in chapel and visited classes to tell of their experiences on the field. Individual conferences with missionaries, as well as informal contacts in the dining hall, the parlor, and in the Dugout, gave students an opportunity to become personally acquainted with these ambassadors of Christ.

These contacts with missionary work helped students to pray more effectively for those who are working in other lands.

STUDENT MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION

Students who plan to enter the ministry are organized for fellowship and inspiration in the Student Ministerial Association.

The call to hold pastorates and preach demands not only preparation in the classroom and consistent devotion to the means of grace but also practical experience. Members of the association gain this experience by conducting services in nearby churches and missions. Also, under the sponsorship of the Association, seniors present messages in the college chapel during a special series of services.

And, of course, in a Christian school, where the student body is, for the most part, a representation of both Christian homes, and, in numerous cases, ministers' homes, the activities of the Ministerial Association are watched with interest by the entire campus. The functions of this organization certainly serve to set the spiritual atmosphere of the college.

Dinner-table conversation, dormitory "discussions," parlor games, Friday-night programs, class and society outings, committee meetings, publication work sessions, athletics, choir tours, and work in local business establishments are a few of the associations we enjoy while we attend our small co-educational college. These activities are profitable, not only as pleasant forms of relaxation and recreation, but also as forces molding us: developing refinement as well as esteem for others.

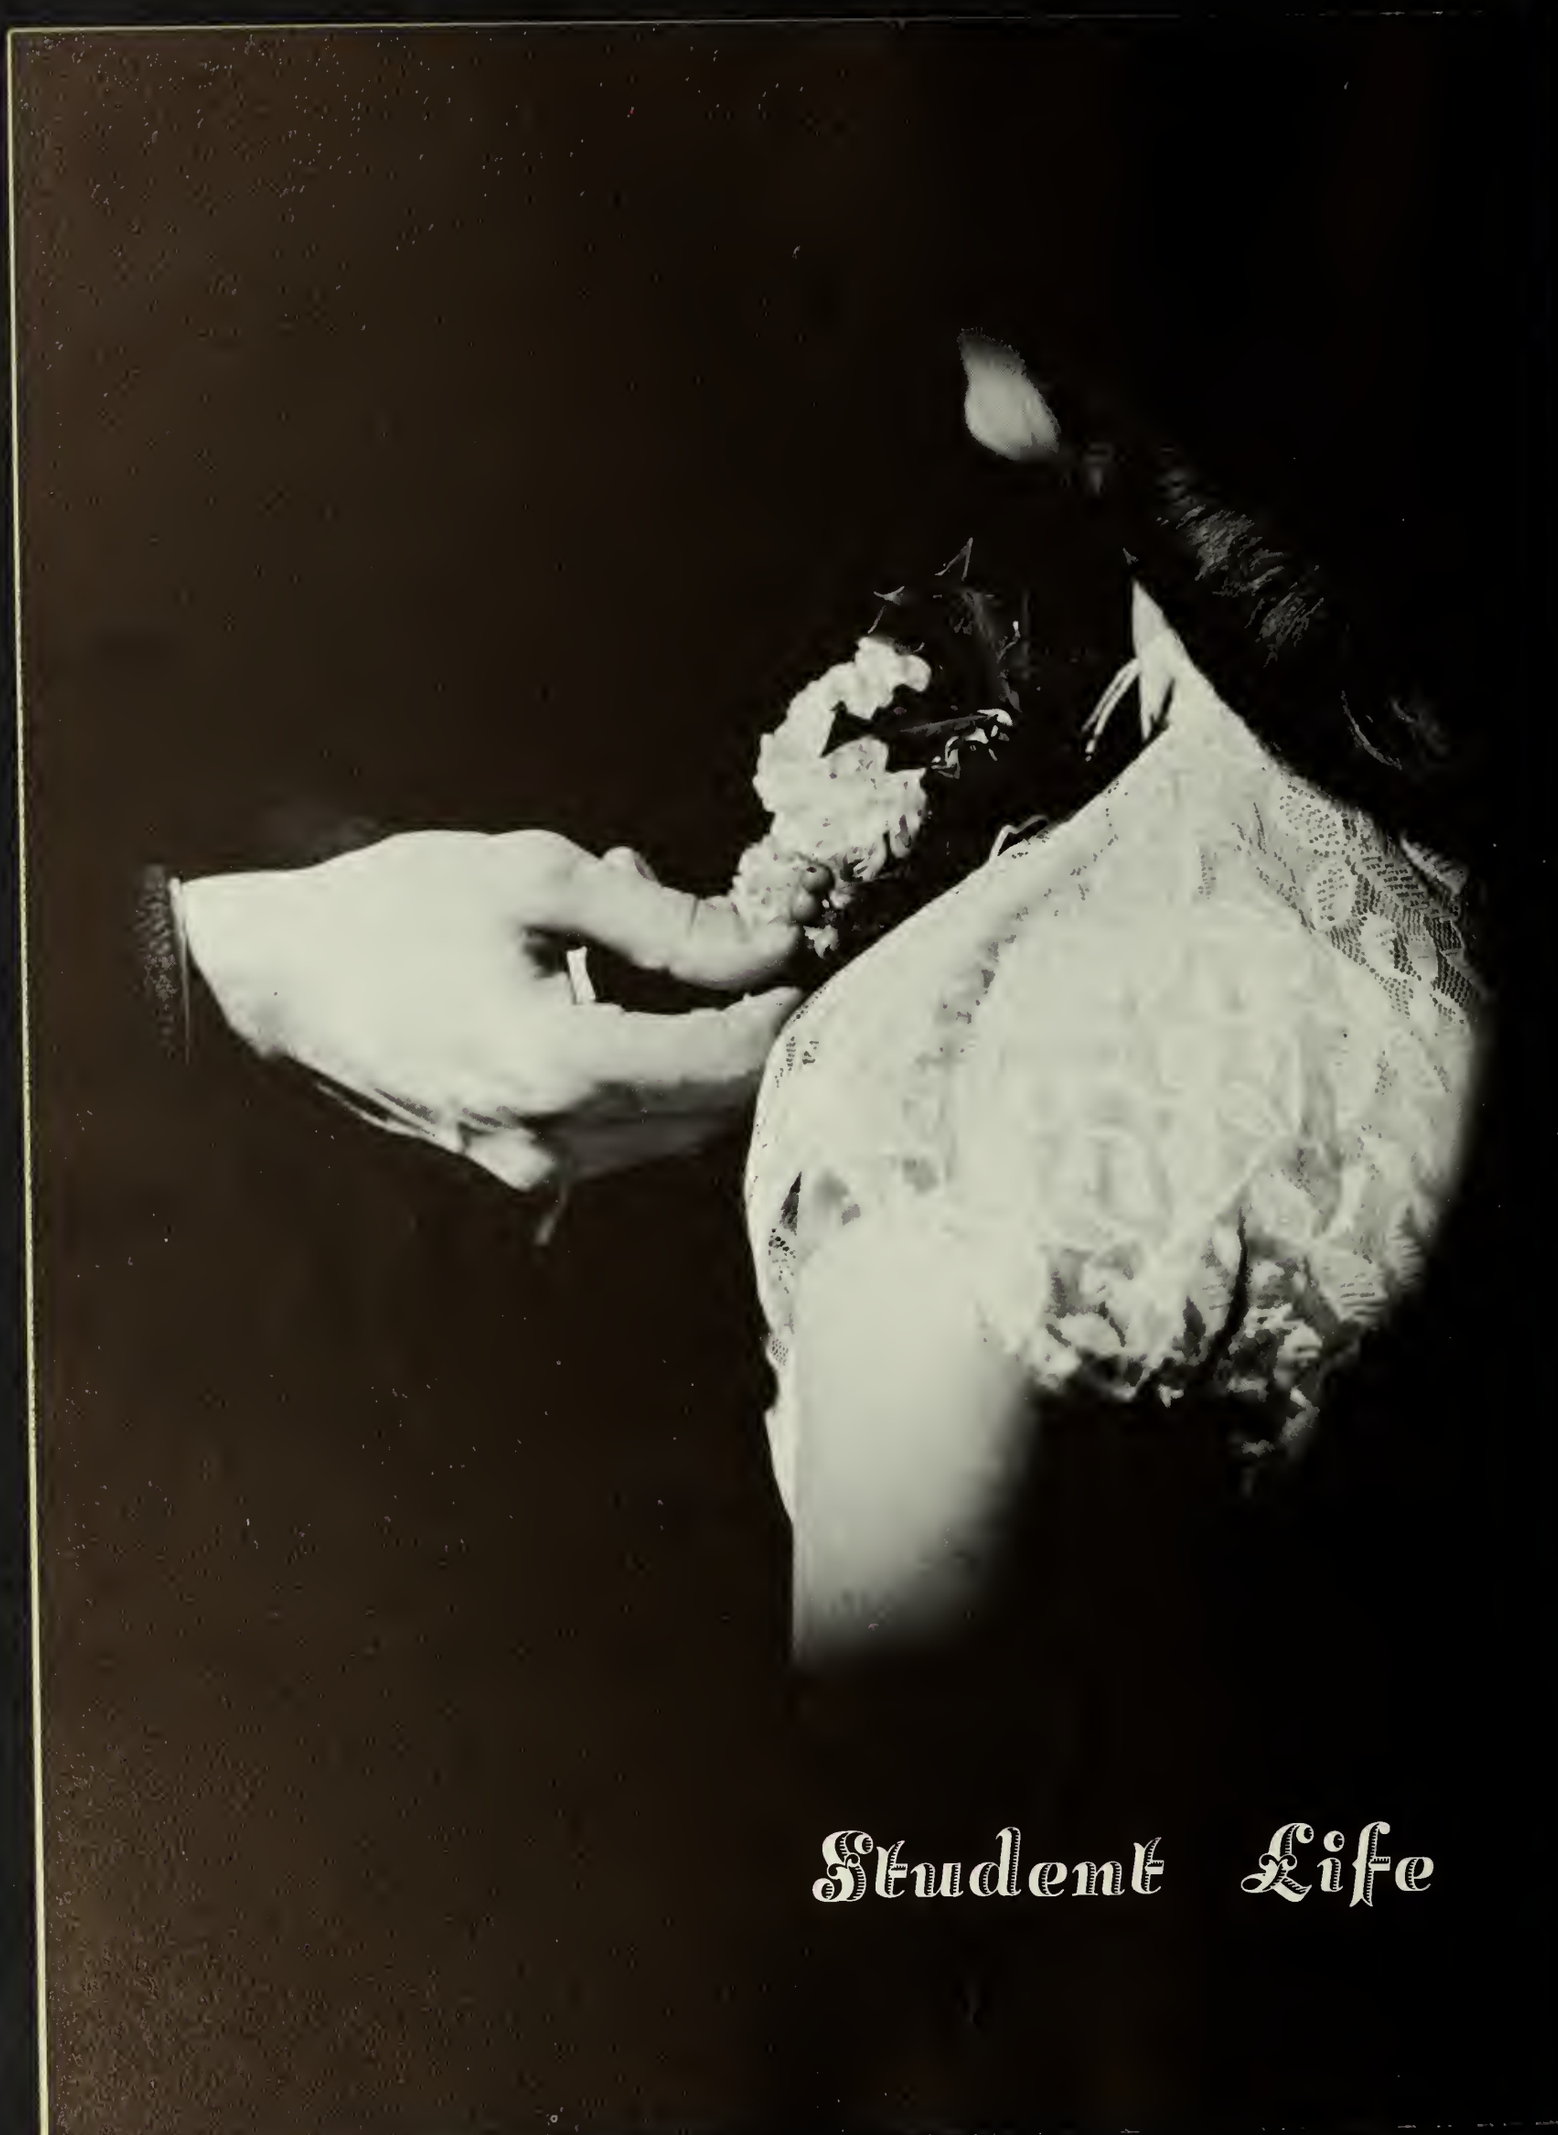

As we work and play together, we learn how to conduct ourselves with poise and how to communicate effectively and democratically. By channeling our energies into a variety of profitable and creative activities we develop our skills and exercise our talents.

Through the diversity of our associations and the variety of our activities, God's hand molds us to be responsible church members, active citizens and persons keenly interested in others.

SENIOR TRIP SONG

Tune: "Magic Moments"

We started at six, the Juniors had fixed a wonderful breakfast.
Al's bus was there and cold was the air when we all were boarding.
Off to the Elms for our Senior frolic . . .
Visions of laughter, snow and fun before us . . .
Time can't erase these memories of Magic Moments filled with fun.

We got to the Elms at quarter to nine, had sweet rolls and coffee.
Got into warm togs, off to the Ski Hut—that started our trouble.
Sam was grounded, had to have six stitches.
Veccy, skiing, fell and split her britches . . .
Time can't erase these memories of Magic Moments filled with fun.

Near tragedy came when ice was too thin and Nancy fell in.
And Walter, the shark, revealed all his past by handling the cue stick.
Toboggans, T.V., and some table tennis . . .
Time can't erase the memories of Magic Moments filled with fun.

The Rook deck was there, and soft were the chairs when we played at Scrabble.
Soft music by Hu, the excellent view, devotions at bedtime.
Best of all, the whitened slopes we conquered,
Dodging here and there the ones who faltered.
Time can't erase these memories of Magic Moments filled with fun.

THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL OF THE STUDENT BODY ORGANIZATION

The executive council of the Student Body Organization is composed of representatives from classes, publications, societies, and the president and vice-president of the student body.

The Council became a member of National Student Association this year and, stimulated by contact with students from other colleges and universities in the area, it has attempted to re-evaluate its purposes and functions. By promoting interest in student activities, by encouraging scholarly, cosmopolitan attitudes toward knowledge and society, by supporting the spiritual emphasis of our campus, the Council seeks to play a part in achieving the goals of an education with a Christian emphasis.

The Council sponsored a "Dutch Daze" TWIRP party during the fall semester, a Crystal Christmas banquet and program, a formal banquet and party in February, as well as a greeting for the freshmen after the faculty reception during freshman week.

Special activities this year included redecorating the Council chamber, furnishing the dining room with new curtains, sponsoring transportation to several Boston Youthtime services, and holding frequent sessions to which the entire student body was especially invited.

Throughout his years at E.N.C., a student has many experiences which become cherished memories. The college yearbook records some of these memories in a tangible form for him. The staff of the 1958 Nautilus has worked diligently to capture some of the highlights of this year and to present them to him as a reminder of his college activities.

After the basic plan for this yearbook was determined early last fall, the staff began thinking, planning, and writing for the book. Selecting a theme, designing its artistic and photographic interpretation, writing reports of activities and soliciting support of advertisers channeled the energies of the staff members into worthwhile, creative activities.

Each member of the staff hopes that you will find reminders of your most happy, most memorable moments recorded in this 1958 Nautilus.

"Down Melody Lane with the Deltas" was the theme of this year's Delta Rush Day display. Fifty-nine new students started in the right direction as the horse and buggy attracted more new members than any other society.

The Delta calendar of social events for this year was highlighted by the autumn outing with the Sigmas. An afternoon in the Blue Hills and a moonlight hayride with cider and potato chips made the day one to remember.

This year's slogan of "Freshman, Spirit, Championship" voiced on Rush Day was exemplified by the determined Delta spirit, a factor which kept us near the top throughout the entire year.

The Delta prayer meetings proved to be blessings and a factor which bound us more closely together in our friendships and activities.

We ended the year with the Spring outing which made us feel all the more glad we were Deltas.

This year, the Kappas launched a rocket that carried fifty-seven new freshmen into our society. Typical of the Kappa spirit, we met around a giant bonfire for a lively pep rally on the evening of Rush Day.

The new freshmen who joined the Blue and White this year have contributed a great deal to our success from the time we entered intramural sports activities and began a continuous support of our teams on the gridiron, basketball floor, volleyball court and softball diamond.

Our weekly prayer meetings and presentation of an N.Y.P.S. program helped to strengthen us as a group.

As the spring season quickly came to a close we had our spring outings and soon departed from the campus with even greater affection and hopes for our Kappa Society in the coming year.

The Sigma locomotive started its annual run on Rush Day this year with fifty freshmen aboard. Signifying the Sigma spirit, the members formed a line which wound its way about the campus and whose spirit lasted throughout the year.

We joined the Deltas in the fall for our society outing. We went on a moonlight hayride following an afternoon in the Blue Hills with games, hamburgs, and chocolate milk.

In sports, our members kept us close to the top with their enthusiastic and skillful playing both on the football field and on the courts. Never will we forget the rousing cheers and constant support of our cheerleaders as they encouraged our enthusiasm at each game.

The interest in and devotion to our weekly prayer meetings helped to draw us together as well as closer to God.

Leaving school in the spring we were anxious to return for another year of fun and fellowship with the Sigmas.

SIGMA DELTA ZETA

With a scale model reproduction of the Wollaston Federal Savings Bank for our Rush Day display, we Zetas started off the year with a second place display rating. Complete with a guarding policeman, the display helped to influence twenty-nine Freshmen to join the Green and Gold.

Our bond of fellowship tightened as we played ball on both field and court, and as we cheered our teams from the sidelines.

We then took time out for an afternoon of fun as we went to New Bedford for our society outing . . . a spaghetti dinner . . . games . . . devotions. What a time we had!

Because of our prayer meetings and the spiritual emphasis in our meetings, we felt unity that only a spiritual emphasis can provide.

The year passed all too quickly and though we were sorry to see our seniors graduate, we are looking forward to even better years with the Zetas.

DEBATE

The challenge of matching skill and knowledge in convincing presentation of either a negative or an affirmative side of a controversial topic makes debating a valuable intellectual experience for college students.

Debaters spend many hours doing research and preparing cases in order to match wits with the outstanding representatives of universities and colleges throughout the East.

This year, debaters studied the right-to-work laws and the role of labor unions in industry in order to intelligently discuss the question: "Resolved: that membership in a labor organization as a condition of employment should be illegal."

A CAPPELLA

The A Cappella Choir of E.N.C. provides opportunity for talented young men and women to share in the representation of the college by their appearance in local civic organization meetings, in churches in the New England area, and in Nazarene churches throughout the educational zone.

The choir, which rehearses three hours each week, toured the East during the spring vacation. Its program included anthems, gospel numbers, and spirituals.

Girls who want to improve their sight-reading ability, their harmonizing and blending of musical tones are especially interested in the Ladies' Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Esther Williamson.

Rehearsals once a week prepare these girls for final performances of special music for small churches in the area near the college.

These young ladies find this experience the basic background valuable for tryouts for the A Cappella Choir.

The House Council, composed of elected representatives from each of the women's dormitories assists the deans in establishing and enforcing regulations.

Special projects of the Council include sponsoring the annual "Open House" which last fall featured a musical fashion show with male models. Opening all the dormitories on campus for inspection encourages students to decorate and arrange their rooms attractively and comfortably early in the first semester.

The Council also arranged after-dinner prayer meetings on Sundays and decorated the parlor for the Christmas season.

Membership in the college Honor Society gives recognition to students who do outstanding scholastic work.

The society was established to encourage students to give the best of their time and effort to maintaining a high scholastic standing. By striving to earn honor grades students prepare themselves for graduate work and professional careers.

A 2.3 quality point average for each hour of major work and no grade below B- for two successive semesters are the requirements for membership.

The Pre-Medical Association is now in its second year as a club on the E. N. C. campus. The association includes all students who are seriously considering medicine and its related fields as possible careers.

This past year members of the club visited medical museums, hospitals, and at their monthly meetings viewed films and heard interns and specialists relate their experiences in medicine.

Under the leadership of Dr. Calvin Maybury, faculty advisor, and Warner Stanford, president of the association, the members gained a closer understanding of the important and limitless possibilities throughout the various fields of medicine.

BIOLOGY ASSOCIATION

Hiking along a mountain trail in search of unusual plant specimens, observing the hydrarch, walking through the bog beside a pond in the Blue Hills, and cultivating flowers to help make the campus attractive, keep members of the Biology Association active.

Lectures, discussions, and films highlight the regular meetings of the Association in which career opportunities in biology and related fields are explored.

Members who are students in the general Biology courses receive credit for chart-making, participating in the Cancer Fund Drive, and working in the campus greenhouse.

The Literature-Speech Club provides opportunities for discussion and study of selected works in informal sessions under the guidance of the club's advisors, Dean Emeritus Bertha Munro and Professor Louise Dygoski.

Members also enjoyed two tours this year. One was a local tour of the South Shore, including the Quincy Homestead; the other was a tour of the North Shore, including the historical towns of Lexington and Concord.

The highlight of the year was a poetry festival, the first of its kind at Eastern Nazarene College. It featured collections of poems read aloud by speech students and others interested in vocal interpretation and public speaking.

The Psychology Club provides a program of information and discussion of interest to students preparing for careers in which they will need psychological understanding of individuals.

Future teachers, preachers, and doctors find the lectures, films, and discussions presented at club meetings enlightening and stimulating to their special interests in educational, adolescent, or abnormal psychology or psychology of personality.

The club activity of greatest interest was a trip last fall to the Boston State Mental Hospital where students observed various types of mental cases and heard a lecture on tranquilizer drugs, shock treatment, and progress in curing mental illness.

BOWNE PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY

Philosophy is an attempt to understand our total experiences by means of rigorous and coherent thinking. The chief interest is to correlate philosophy with Christian principles and ideas.

The purpose of the Bowne Philosophical Club is to promote interest in the philosophical quest. In the fulfillment of this purpose, we have listened to speakers from our own campus and distinguished philosophers from Boston University and Harvard.

In the regular monthly meetings, students are given opportunity to discuss issues and problems in which they are interested.

The society's activities supplement class lectures and discussions in giving pre-professional training especially to ministerial students.

The Chemistry Association is organized to stimulate interest in the broadening horizons and opportunities of modern chemistry. The Association members who are considering careers in science learn about the recent advances in theoretical and industrial chemistry.

Films, guest speakers, and group discussions help students explore fields of research and study.

Afternoon field trips to Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Harvard, and Boston University acquaint students with graduate schools and their programs. Guided tours through industrial chemical corporations and research centers increase students' knowledge of careers in chemistry.

LAS ESTRELLAS

Who would imagine we could really have fun with a foreign language? But the first meeting of Las Estrellas assured us, the club members, that we should enjoy informal study about people, customs, and lands where Spanish is spoken.

Miniature church services, complete with solos and messages interpreted by a Puerto Rican student, proved inspiring to each of us. In December we sang "Noche de Paz," "Venid, Fieles Todos," and other carols in Spanish, and enjoyed a holiday banquet at the Toll House.

Students preparing for a career in teaching find the F.T.A. an aid in their search for ideas, methods, and practical theories.

Members spent one meeting cutting and mounting pictures to be placed on file in the library for use by practice teachers.

The December meeting featured a lecture by Dr. J. F. Comito, a specialist in the study of retarded children.

FOREIGN STUDENTS

Students from foreign countries bring to our college an opportunity for us to develop a cosmopolitan atmosphere on our campus and to broaden our outlook by contact with students from cultures different from our own.

The majority of the foreign student group is from Canada, but there are also students from Puerto Rico, Nigeria, Lebanon, Egypt, and Ireland.

These students learn about our way of life and our ideas while they earn their degrees, so that they may fulfill professional roles with adequate understanding of both culture and knowledge.

Chess enthusiasts organized a club this year to promote interest in a game of skill which has educational value.

After initial learning stages, members developed playing skill with hours of both grueling and enjoyable practice.

By midyear, all members were able to participate in a tournament. The keen competition made the players realize the value of their many hours of concentration and practice. Tension grew with every play! Finally, a champion eliminated other competitors. The "chess champion of E.N.C." was then awarded an engraved trophy by the club.

Climbing through rain and fog we "conquered" our first mountain in September. This was the start of a busy year which included lectures, slides, and films on rock climbing, hiking and camping. After studying indoors, we went out to nearby hills and trails to practice our skills.

Our biggest and most exciting trip was held during Thanksgiving vacation. Making the Appalachian Mountain Club Lodge at the foot of Mt. Washington our base camp, we spent hours on the trail hiking, climbing, and getting acquainted with New England's tallest mountain.

We will never forget the thrill of rappeling down a rock wall for the first time, of watching a sunrise in the White Mountains, and especially . . . the thrill of reaching the summit after hours of hard climbing.

PHYSICAL CULTURE CLUB

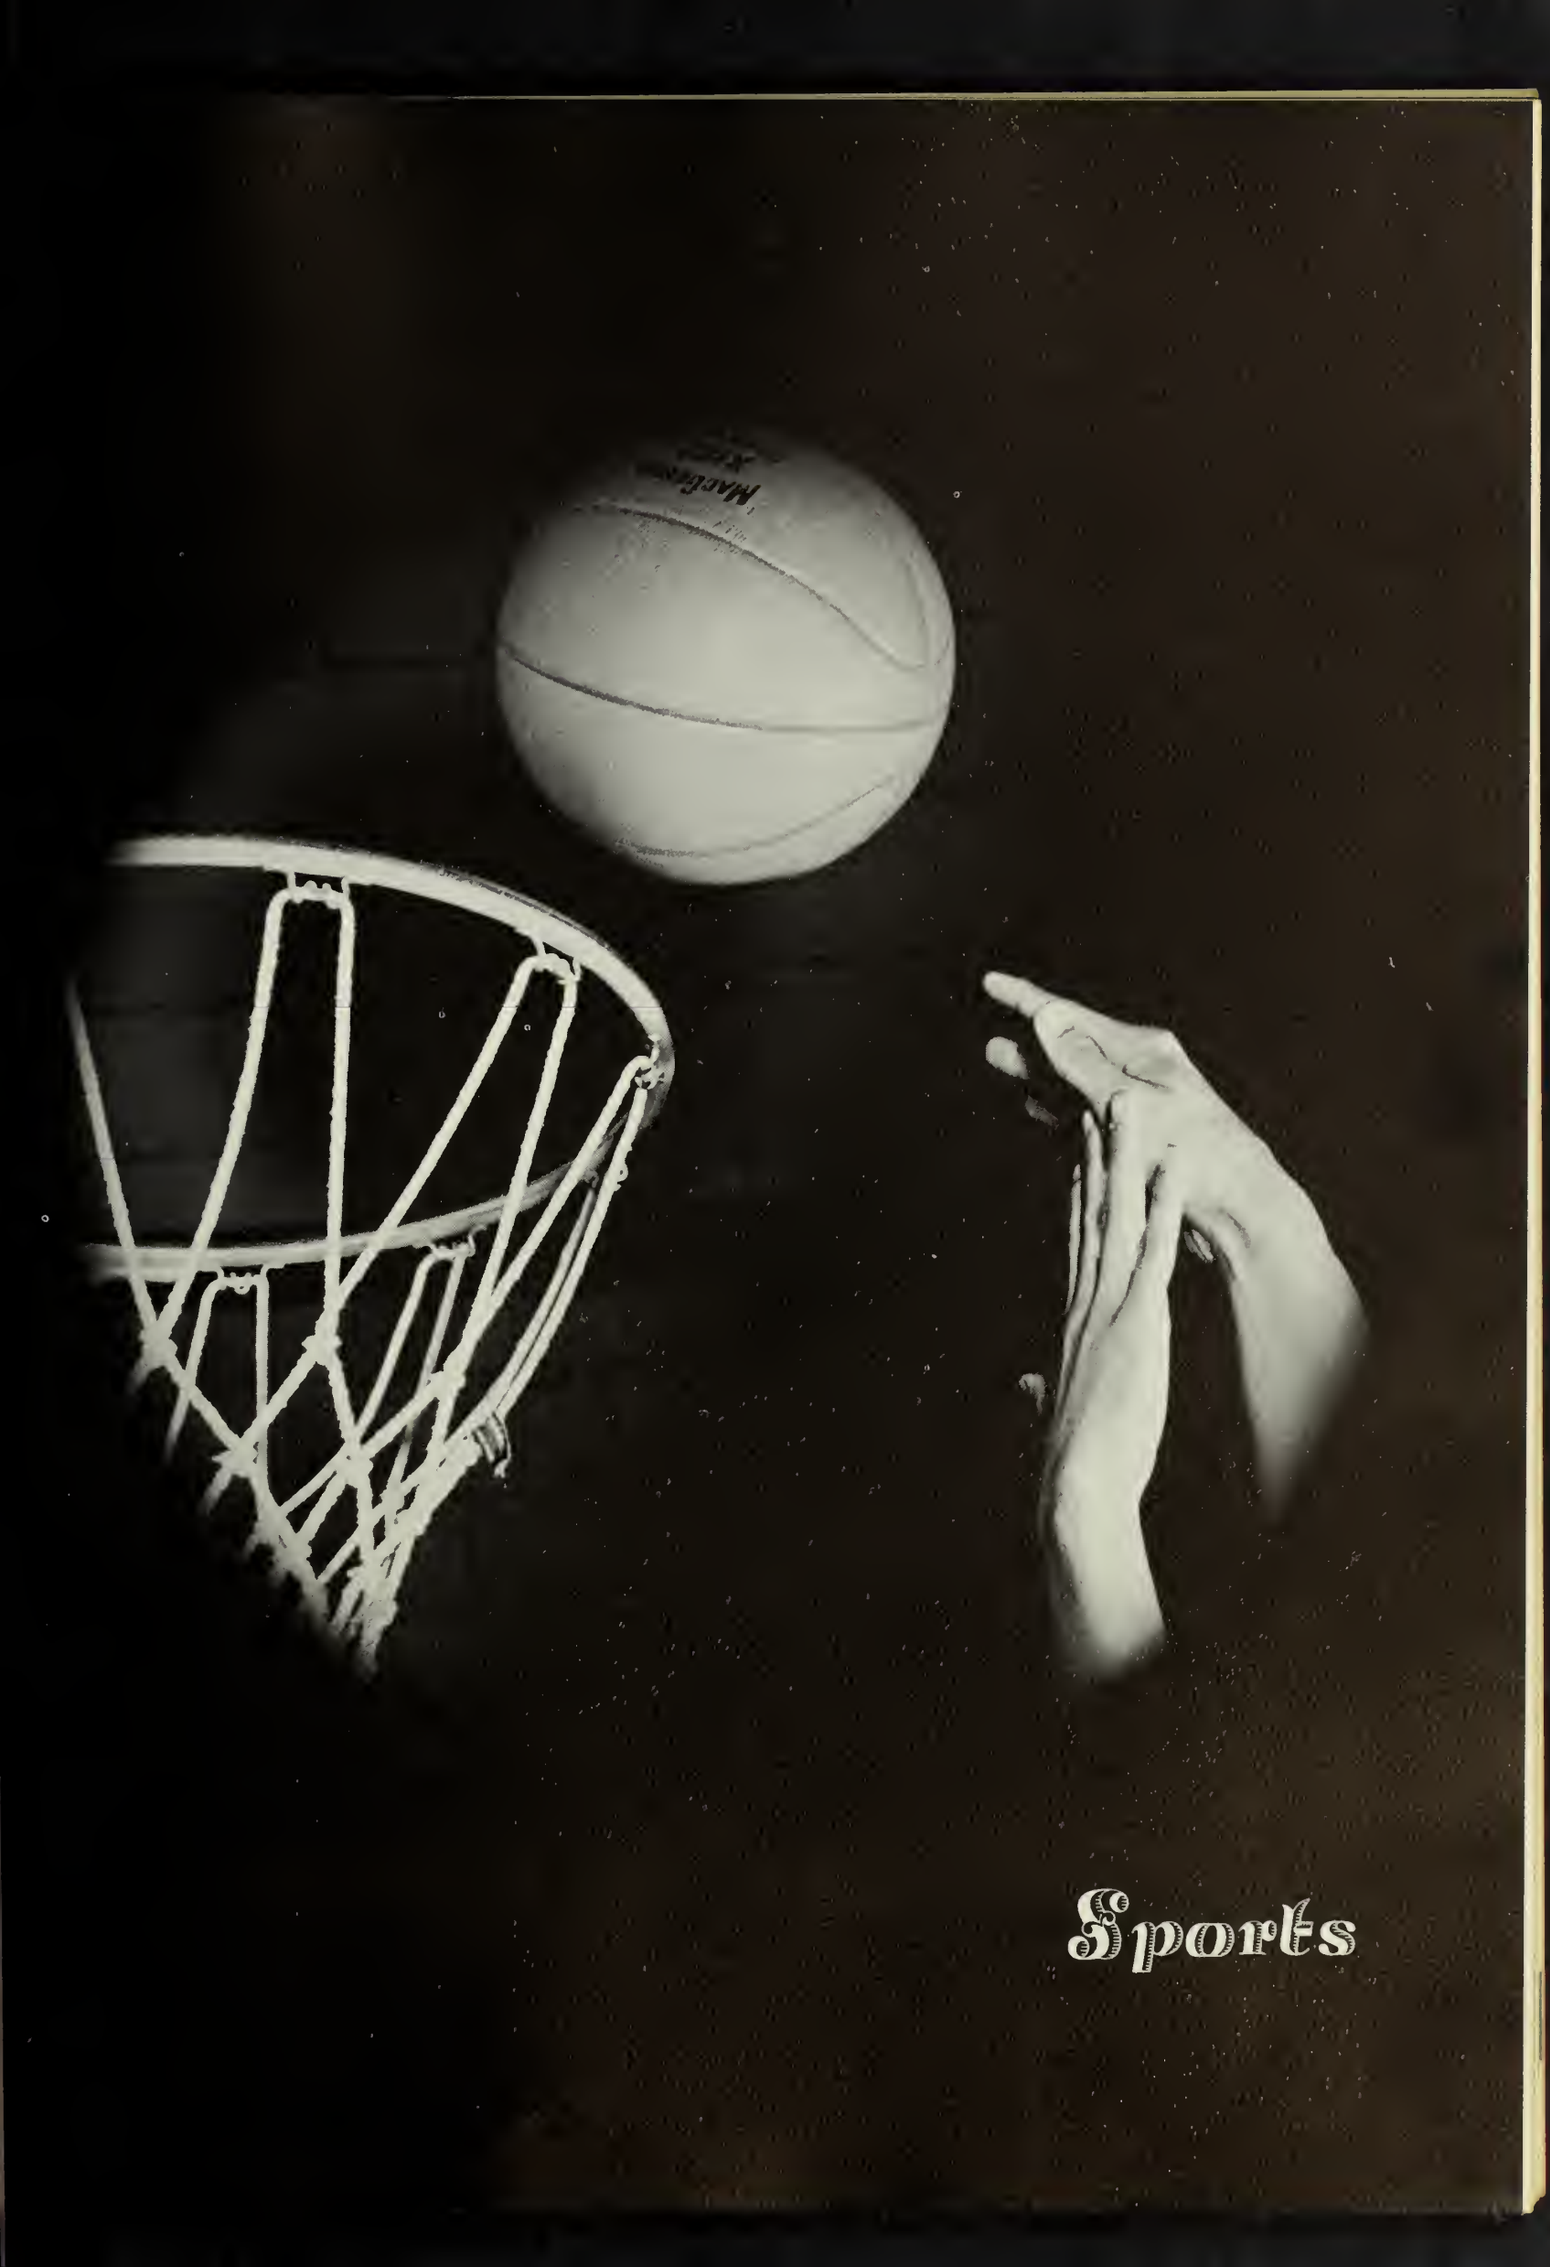

Although it is a relatively new organization on campus, the physical culture club is the strongest. The endless hours of struggling with dead weight (in club language—squats, clean and jerk, press, curls, etc.) and exhausting calisthenics keep the members in top physical condition during the winter months. The spring meets with M.I.T. and other schools in the area keep the interest high and the competition keen.

The club is presently planning to expand its facilities and relocate in a more suitable place.

An annual activity of the club is the sponsoring of a splash party at the Y.M.C.A. each spring.

"N" CLUB

The coronation of our first "Homecoming Queen" of Eastern Nazarene College highlighted the activities of the college "N" Club this year. At the midwinter alumni weekend games between the Society All-Star—Alumni teams and the Crusader-Nyack teams, Eleanore Gery, a member of the club, was crowned and reigned with her attendants, Carolyn Burgess and Enid Woods. The three seniors were elected by a vote of the student body.

The "N" Club also provided printed programs for sale at the Crusader games. These featured pictures of the team, the "N" Club, the Girls' All-Star team, and cheerleaders, as well as team rosters and the season schedule.

Tickets to both the society intramural games and the Crusader games are sold by "N" Club members, and income which is not turned over to school for support of the Crusader team is used to pay referees, rentals for gymnasiums, and other incidental expenses of the college sports program.

The Club is growing in importance. Its program has expanded in co-operation with the Crusaders and by a decision of the club, it has increased its total membership. Members are selected on the basis of participation in intramural sports and enrollment at the college for at least three semesters.

Tickets were sold to all Crusaders games by the "N" Club.

FOOTBALL ALL-STARS

The 1957 All Star Football Team is made up of three Sigmas, two Kappas, and one Delta. This year's team packs plenty of speed, skill, and versatility.

The All Stars are chosen from the societies' teams by the society coordinators with the aid of Dean Bradley.

The year's second team is composed of F. Boden, D. Hutchinson, R. Cubie, J. Holcomb, D. Bernecker, and B. Roberts.

FOOTBALL

The 1957 society football season ended and a new champion was crowned. The Kappa Society, whose steady play throughout the season, surprised most sports enthusiasts by emerging victorious in all but one game. The Kappas used a varied offense and a tight defense to edge the preseason favorites, Delta and Sigma. Thus, the 1957 version of the Kappa team will stand out as the first in its society's history to win the football championship.

Although hopeful of winning the championship, the Deltas had to be satisfied with taking second place after losing twice to the Kappas and Sigmas. Although spectacular at times, they were unable to play a steady game.

The Sigmas with a 3-3 won-lost record, could not get their offense together and thus, their scoring punch was kept at a minimum.

The sportsmanship shown on the field throughout the season was well in keeping with the famous lines of Grantland Rice: "For when that one 'Great Scorer' comes to mark against your name, He writes not if you won or lost, but how you played the game."

The Crusaders of E.N.C. have enjoyed another great year in basketball. They have been undefeated in eight games this year, extending their winning streak of last year to seventeen straight games. The team has averaged better than eighty-six points per game while holding the opposition to sixty-four points per game.

Our opponents this year were: Gordon, Nyack, New England School of Theology, Eastern Baptist College, Kings College, and Providence Barrington Bible College.

The strength of the team lay in the fact that four of the first five Jack Smith, Dave Hutchinson, Merritt Mann or Dick Mann could break twenty points in a given game. Howard Chambers backed them up with steady playmaking from his guard position. The Crusaders, even though they won all of their regular games, did not have an easy time every game. However, every time the Crusaders were pressed, their fine teamwork and superior ability proved to be the margin needed for victory.

Captain, Dave Hutchinson, with his fine jump shot and superb rebounding was able to tally 25 points against Eastern Baptist at Quincy as E.N.C. defeated E.B.C., 78-62.

The E.B.C. game in Philadelphia was a struggle up to the third quarter when Dick Mann, freshman forward, drove and hit his jump shot for sixteen points.

Our boys were privileged to receive an invitation to King's College to the Christian College Tournament at White Plains, N. Y.

E.N.C. is proud of the Crusader basketball team. These gentlemen have represented the school in an unquestionable manner and they are solid examples of good Christian sportsmanship.

SOCIETY BASKETBALL

Soon after the first snow, society basketball became the major sport and with it came the usual thrills and cheers. A new touch was added to "Tip-Off Night." In a round-robin tournament, the Sigmas emerged victors by defeating the Deltas in the last second of play.

This proved to be an indication of the season as the Sigmas displayed a well-balanced offense and a type of steady playing which even their nearest rival, the Kappas, was unable to upset. These capable Kappas, though an unsteady rival, were able to break a Sigma-five-game-winning streak by defeating the Red and Black, 51-44.

The Zetas, after a slow start, burst forth in a last fighting attempt of the season, bringing forth memories of the Zetas of old.

Lacking the necessary height, the fighting Deltas were never able to rally to any great victory record, but they made every game exciting regardless of the score.

With the Crusaders ineligible for Society competition, the highlight of the season was the battle between the Society All-Stars and the Alumni. In an exciting last quarter, the Alumni won by a single point, 46-45.

Delta, Fred Boden, lays one in over the outstretched arm of Zeta John Chavier.

VOLLEYBALL

The 1957-58 volleyball season featured high society spirit among all the players and spectators. All games were sparked by brilliant playing, individually, and complete team cooperation. Although the Deltas were favored to win, they had some very stiff competition and had to share championship honors with the Sigma Society. This gave the Black and Red their fourth straight rank in first place. The only defeat handed either team was in the hands of the other as the Sigmas tripped the Deltas once and the Black and Gold in turn stopped the Sigmas.

The enthusiasm and spirit of good sportsmanship gave the girls, even in the last place Kappa and Zeta societies, a sense of achievement and pleasure of participation. Recreation and exercise, as well as sosiety competition make volleyball a profitable activity.

SOCIETY BASKETBALL

As the volleyball and net were put away for another season, basketball became the major interest of the girl athletes of E.N.C.

The addition of promising freshmen to strengthen their teams was anticipated by all four societies and, in the final analysis, they were not disappointed. In the nine-game series, the Kappas and Sigmas proved to have the combinations which kept them on top in a first place tie for most of the season. Although not lacking in spirit, the Deltas and Zetas could not win consistently enough to move out of the second division.

The outstanding players of each society were picked for the girls' All-Star team which played tougher competition from other schools and colleges. Coach Bradley's feminine All-Stars played two games with Providence Barrington Bible College and single games with Gordon College and New England Baptist Hospital. They met on the court for the first time, teams from Bridgewater State Teacher's College and Tufts University and also played their annual game with the alumnae.

Suffering from the loss of Donna Lesser and Joyce Rines from last season's starting six, this year's All-Stars nevertheless, turned in admirable performances with a team composed of five Kappas, four Sigmas, three Deltas, and three Zetas.

Sally Fuller scores for E.N.C. against Bridgewater State Teachers College.

This yearbook has created a special set of memories for each member of the staff. Expressing our ideas creatively involved work, planning, and attention to detail.

However, this yearbook became a reality through the combined efforts of many people besides the immediate staff. Our thanks go to those who gave us special help: Ed and Jack Percy of Miller Studios, Ross Farnham and Jewell Gates of Wm. J. Keller, Inc., Dr. Alvin Kauffman, and to all advertisers whose assistance made this 1958 NAUTILUS financially possible.
